
Search for a genuine past and heraldic crest

Posted by windleyadmin - 2006/03/26 04:02

OK, after numerous requests to different organisations we have received different variations of heraldic crest (the picture in the top right hand corner of this page) for the Windley family. So if you have another variations please send us a picture of your Windley crest to display on this site so that we can determine if we genuinely have an heraldic history and crest. For modern purposes we can combine the best of the crest into a single piece.

The question is do Windley's need a crest ? and do we have a heraldic past ?

???

Re: Search for a genuine past and heraldic crest

Posted by paleface - 2007/05/08 16:47

OK, after numerous requests to different organisations we have received different variations of heraldic crest (the picture in the top right hand corner of this page) for the Windley family. So if you have another variations please send us a picture of your Windley crest to display on this site so that we can determine if we genuinely have an heraldic history and crest. For modern purposes we can combine the best of the crest into a single piece.

The question is do Windley's need a crest ? and do we have a heraldic past ?

???

Would be good if there was a response to this, if you think it is important we find out, just interesting, or it does not matter unless you let us now we will progress toward finding out.

Peter L Windley

Re: Search for a genuine past and heraldic crest

Posted by Crests on display - 2007/05/26 10:54

All users can share and upload Windley family crests to the gallery section of the site. There are already 2 in there.

B)
